I recently started a research position that basically is studying cellular signaling responses, I am somewhat clueless on the theory of the research (trained as a med tech). I can understand the testing we are doing, but the overall picture gets cloudy sometime after it is explained. Can anyone suggest a few books (since I can't imagine North Dakota having a whole lot on hand about the subject) that could help me understand this? I need it somewhat basic terminology (only have a bachelors) with clear concepts and information. Thanks a million! Lori
